Human trafficking is a human rights issue, affecting victims in every part of the United States. Survivors come in the form of all genders, and their experiences also vastly differ. The panelists from the experience of New York Asian Women's Center (NYAWC), Thai Community Development Center (Thai CDC), and Center for Pacific Asian Family (CPAF) aim to introduce human trafficking, with a specific focus on how it impacts various Asian communities in the context of domestic violence and sexual assault. Panelists will highlight experiences and cases, including working with law enforcement and the courts. Panelists will address the needs of immigrant survivors in their own communities, explore the journey of a Thai trafficking survivor and highlight best practices for crisis response, legal remedies, and supporting wellness and healing.
